Press Release

For Immediate Release

Anya Tish Gallery is pleased to announce Three in 3 –D, a three-person exhibition from July 13th to August 11, 2007. The Artists Reception will be on Friday the 13th, from 7pm – 9pm. The show coincides with the annual summer ArtHouston event with an Open House on July 14th, from 11am – 5pm. The show features the artists George Grochocki, Garland Fielder and Jason S. Brown, and is inspired by the formal play between two-dimensional representation and three-dimensional presentation.

Born in Poland, George Grochocki is now a long established artist living and working in Houston. His methodology includes elegance and a natural refinement, often constraining his pallet to a minimum of elements. For years Grochocki has utilized a four-color system of black, gold, silver and white, coupled with a simple square motif. These “areas” when endowed with color become a commentary upon the dynamics of space. Grochocki has exhibited since the 1960’s in Poland and throughout Europe, and his works are in the permanent collections of numerous museums, among them: Museum of Modern Art, Lodz, Poland; Exackte Tendenzen Collection, Vienna, Austria; Constructivism Collection, Cholet, France; Museum of Modern Art, Portland, OR.

Garland Fielder is an artist and writer living in Houston. He received his MFA from the University of North Texas in 2005 and has been exhibiting both nationally and internationally since. Fielder’s art is primarily concerned with the optical decision making process the viewer has to reckon with when confronted with his imagery. The extraction of line and the flattening out of structural elements are ways in which the artist plays with the phenomenology of formal expectation.

Finally, Jason S. Brown is an artist currently working in Denton, Texas. He has been included in several prestigious competitions and has been showing regularly in the state for several years. His current body of work includes meticulously crafted wall-mounted sculptures that evoke a minimalist tradition while bringing a fresh angle to the forefront. Through industrial techniques, Brown maintains an individual and luscious quality to the objects he creates.

Anya Tish Gallery is located at 4411 Montrose. The gallery hours are Tuesday through Friday, 10:30 – 6:00, and Saturday, 11:00 – 5:00.
